Was His Wife Right About This Column?

By CHARLES MERCER

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—"I've never seen a television program," the bishop said. "But I'm most interested."

He was an Anglican bishop, returning home to England by slow stages after several years of service in Africa. He was a cheerful man. Healthy too, but rather deaf.

The conversation began while he was drinking tea at an adjoining table in a Naples hotel. We never would have mentioned television if the concierge had not strode in, long coat tails flying, and turned on the hotel's TV set with a flourish.

There came music, the prelude to "La Traviata," but the screen was blank. The bishop adjusted his nose and looked, perplexed at the empty screen. Then he remarked wistfully on wanting to see a TV program.

I told him I'd seen many TV programs in America, though none in Europe. In fact, I said somewhat archly, at home I was paid to view television and critique what I saw—a career that had left me with vast indifference to viewing TV on a European vacation.

"Then you repair television machines," the bishop said, interested.

"Oh, no," my wife said quickly. "He's very clumsy and—"

But the bishop, his deaf ear turned to her, said to me, "perhaps you could bring the picture on the machine."

Feeling that the bishop deserved better than a blank screen, I went to the set and began turning the dials. The screen remained blank, but "La Traviata" roared louder.

"These foreign makes are different," I shouted.

The concierge hurried in and turned down "La Traviata" and remarked in English that the television would not begin for 15 minutes.

"Then I'll have some more tea and wait for it to begin," said the bishop. "Won't you join me? I'd like to hear about your work with television machines."

My wife, seeing I was tempted to regale him with my life in America as a television repair man, said quickly, "Thanks, no, we have another engagement."

We said goodbye. As we crossed the lobby, she said, "I should think you'd at least have the curiosity to find out their programming hours. If only you'd talk to some of the people they mentioned in New York."

"I'm on vacation."

"Then if you'd look at a few programs while we're in a place where there's a set you might get material for one column on—"

"I just got material for a column," I said.

"I don't think you did," she said. Perhaps she was right.

Terry Moore Seems Happy With Marriage

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Terry Moore has gotten a new husband, four homes spread over the hemisphere and an entirely different outlook on life.

You can see the difference when you talk to her for a while. She's still intent on her acting career, but she's no longer the eager beaver. She seems to have found contentment.

"These last four months since I've been married have been the happiest time in my life," she gloved. "I'm leading a fascinating life."

She sure is. In February, she married Eugene McGrath, a young businessman who operates on an international scale. The son of a Panamanian and Venezuelan, since many of his business associates are in the United States, he does a great deal of traveling.

"Last year he clocked 260,000 miles," Terry reported admiringly. "Because he does so much traveling, we have four different homes. We have a house in Panama City—a lovely ranch—type place on a hill. Then we have two floors on top of an apartment building in Caracas. We have six bedrooms; we need that much space because Gene does a lot of entertaining of visiting business associates."

We keep an apartment at the Sherry—Netherlands in New York. When we're here, we stay with my folks—in a wing where we have our own private entrance."

Doesn't all this traveling place a strain on her wardrobe, etc?

mistake commission on any violations.

The charge renewed by the U.N. Command yesterday was that almost from the outset the Communists had violated the letter and the spirit of the agreement. It accused the Reds of introducing into North Korea weapons of a type not previously there—mainly jet airplanes.

Authorities here said indications are the Reds never meant to keep the agreements. They were also aided by limits which were imposed on the inspection procedures.

Officials said this indicated that limited inspections subject to violation cannot be accepted as adequate for general disarmament; only agreements which provide for unlimited inspection by air and ground teams can be expected to work.

Be a plane spotter...protect our nation from threat of air attack

Certainly, if war comes, it will be the Kremlin that strikes the first blow. Unlike Germany and Japan, the Reds will not aim at some distant point on the map, but right at the heart of the United States itself.

What can you do to help prevent such an attack? What would you do should the United States or Hemphstead County be attacked? T-Sgt. Wiley A. Swilley, Jr., of the Shreveport Filter Center, will show a film explaining how and what might do to prevent such an attack on Thursday morning, June 7, at 9:30 o'clock in the Hemphstead County Courtroom according to Mrs. Lorraine B. Wylie, home demonstration agent.

This should be a meeting of interest to every woman in Hemphstead County. If we are to survive an attack we must be prepared. In order to be prepared we must know what to do. Won't you attend the meeting and learn first hand what you do and how you can survive such an attack? The public is invited.

Cardinal Again Arrested, Is the Report

MUNICH, Germany (UP)—Hungarian Catholic Primate Joseph Cardinal Mindyenty has been arrested again, according to the semi-official Catholic news agency.

Mindyenty was released from an Hungarian Communist jail less than a year ago, his health broken by years in dark cells.

The news agency said it had received "confirmed reports from Hungary" that the Communists put the aged primate back in jail because he refused to sign a loyalty pledge recognizing all the church laws enacted in Communist Hungary since 1948.

That was the year Mindyenty was first jailed. There was no immediate confirmation from Hungary.

The agency said the Communists stipulated as his price for continued freedom acceptance of the Communist "peace movement for Catholic priests," recognition of the abolition of all Catholic Orders and congregations and one-sided decrees by the Red government concerning church-state relations.

Mindyenty lived at Buespoets Zentloszka, the summer residence of the Catholic bishop of Fuenfirchen, after his release from prison last July 15.

Western sources believed the conference between the Hungarian church leader and government officials took place about two weeks ago and Mindyenty probably was arrested immediately afterwards.

The news agency said the same "confirmed reports" stated that Archbishop Groesz, who recently was reinstated by the Hungarian state government, also has not signed any Red loyalty statement.

The reports said the official Communist newspapers published an alleged statement by Groesz but without any signature.

Florida Boycott in Its 5th Day

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The Tallahassee Negro community's boycott went into its fifth day today and efforts were started to set up an interracial council to head off such incidents in the future.

The boycott, for which 75 per cent effectiveness is claimed by Negro spokesmen, started after two women students of Florida A&M University for Negroes were arrested for refusing to move to the rear of a bus.

Charges against them later were dropped, but the boycott started by their fellow students already

"Oh, no," she replied. "I have four different sets of clothes—one for each place, plus my brushes and even have to pack a bag when I go from one place to the other."

Despite her husband's traveling business, Terry has no intention of giving up her own career.

WHEEL-CHAIR QUEEN—Vauda Frost, of Gadsden, Ala., is the world's only "wheel-chair queen." She is shown here being crowned by Joy Thomas. Miss Frost is a traveling saleswoman who covers six southern states in a car that is entirely hand controlled. She sells cosmetics and other items. The queen was crowned during the recent annual Alabama Wheel Chair Convention in Birmingham. She has been confined to a wheel chair since she was 3½ years old.

DOROTHY DIX

Children Come First Language Problem

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a widow with four adorable children. The three boys are staying with their paternal grandparents while the little girl lives with me and my parents. I must work and my folks didn't want to assume the responsibility of four youngsters. Hence the separation of the children.

I have met, and fallen in love with, a fine man. We are planning marriage; he refuses to take my three boys, but agrees to my keeping the girl. I love my sons dearly and wonder if I could convince him to take them after we're married.

FANNY

Dear Fanny: On the contrary, after he's married he'll probably refuse to accept your daughter. Your fiancé doesn't want the responsibilities of another man's children; he wants to begin married life free and unfettered.

Obviously, as a mother of four you won't fit into that picture. If you tried it, the only result would be unhappiness. You might banish four lively kids from your life, but never from your heart of mind. Furthermore, it wouldn't be exactly sporting to leave the boys forever in their grandparents' care. Suppose something happens to the couple? Where would your boys be then?

I know it isn't easy for a widow to turn down an attractive matrimonial prospect, but this one seems to have very little to offer except charm. You want something more substantial, I'm sure.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am soon to become engaged and have no problems with my boy friend that I can't solve. However, I'm having future mother-in-law trouble already. Through my friend and I are of the same original nationality, my folks were born here and speak their native tongue.

My fiancé's mother often pokes fun at me for not learning the language she speaks. Should I refuse to visit her, complain to my boy friend, or give her a taste of her own medicine and insult her.

PATTY

Dear Patty: Your impatience with, and intolerance of, the older woman makes your own ignorance only too apparent. You consider every angle of retaliation, but none of co-operation. You look down on your "friends' mother, when you should respect her.

If your only in-law difficulty is a question of language, consider yourself lucky. A sensible girl would take full advantage of the opportunity not only to learn another language, but to please her fiancé and her mother. Get wise, girl; start making your marriage a success now.

TRIPLETS DOING 'CHIPPER'

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Triplets—not the human kind—caused quite a stir in Mercy Hospital's maternity ward.

A pair of robins, obviously birds with foresight, had prepared for the event on a window ledge outside the hospital's labor room. There the triplets were born.

Nurses, attending the mother and her young, reported the birds were "chipper."

Friends of Jeff Livingston will be glad to know he is recuperating at his home following surgery in Cora Donnell Hospital.

Ship Pulled Off Sandbar by Tugboats

MESSINA, SICILY (UP) Five tugs and a ferry boat today pulled the British luxury liner Coronia off a sand bar where it had gone aground in broad daylight.

The grounding appeared to have caused little damage but a lot of embarrassment for the big liner because visibility was perfect.

Five Italian frogmen dived under the British vessel, eighth largest luxury liner in the world, to inspect her hull.

The 3,000-ton ship arrived at the entrance to Messina harbor Wednesday night. Most of the 29 passengers went ashore in motor launches while the Coronia waited for a favorable tide to enter the harbor.

While it was maneuvering outside the harbor yesterday, its nose was buried in sand within hailing distance of shore.

Five tug boats and the lumbering ferry "Scilla" carrying a train loaded with passengers, sped to the rescue and pulled the big ship out of its quandary at high tide this morning.

Only 10 feet away was a reef of jagged rocks close to the site of the mythological rock of Scylla opposite the whirlpool of Charybdis which represented twin threats to ancient Greek and Roman shipping.

PARIS (UP)—Hundreds of former concentration camp victims left Strasbourg today for a five-day pilgrimage to the notorious Buchenwald compound.

Led by the Society of Deportees, Resistants and Deportation Camp Patriots, they will hold special memorial services for former fellow prisoners who met death at the camp under the Hitler regime.

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—A radical party leader said yesterday that priceless art treasures found in ousted dictator Juan D. Peron's residence were part of the secret hoards of Hitler's henchmen who fled to Argentina after World War II.

Silvano Santander said the treasures, now held by the revolutionary government, were "stolen by the Nazis when they invaded Belgium, France and Holland." Some were brought by diplomatic pouch and even by submarines, Santander added.

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP)—The Chinese Petroleum Corp., with U. S. technical and financial assistance, has completed two new refinery units in northern Formosa, the council for United States aid announced yesterday.

Loans came from the Gulf Oil Corp., Pittsburgh, and the Midland Crude Oil Sales Co., New York. The Blaw Knox Co., Tulsa, Okla., and the Fluoro Corp., Los Angeles, were the contractors on the units.

Priest Beats Lion Off of a Boy

DUNSTABLE, England (UP)—A Roman Catholic priest shielded one of a 20-foot-high fence at a zoo yesterday and beat off a lion with an iron bar as it maulated an 11-year-old boy.

The boy, Tony Murphy of London, lost both arms. A hospital said he was in critical shape but with a chance of survival.

A police spokesman said Tony was in a party of scouts visiting Whipsnade Zoo.

"He must have climbed over the safety fence and onto the one-inch wire net over the pit," the spokesman said.

"Three female lions and the male were in the pit. The male caught at the boy's arms."

"The priest—the Rev. Ronald Aylward—climbed the safety fence and hit the lion with the iron bar he carried."

Father Aylward was leader of the scout party.

Cooperate With Newsmen Advised

BOSTON (AP)—Dr. Elmer Hess, President of the American Medical Association, says "the best way" is for doctors to cooperate with newsmen.

"He told the 51st annual meeting of the American Urological Association last night. The line was when doctors wouldn't talk to reporters. I think that time has passed. I have ever confidence in the press today."

"Dr. Hess said also he has traveled more than 200,000 miles in the past two years and has yet to be misquoted."

Retreat Haven for Exhausted TV Performers

BY CHARLES MERCER

POZITANO, Italy (AP) — If anybody will listen, we'll reveal a haven of retreat for the exhausted, frayed executives and performers of that distant American world of television and radio.

Here in a fascinating village beside the blue Mediterranean there is no competition, no rating systems, not a single sponsor. Here at the Casa Maresca, between towering mountains and shining seas, there is not even a radio or a TV set or a telephone.

In the words of John Maresca, warm host, genial philosopher and unparalleled chief of this superb pensione, "the radio and the television have a place, but it's not here at the Casa Maresca. There's enough life in Positano without bringing more through the air."

Indeed there is. There's a lesson in leisure to be learned here for those who have forgotten that life is more than a bitterly competitive battle.

Wake to the proud cries of roosters and step to the marble balcony in the rising sun. The white and pink buildings of Positano spill down the steep mountainside to the blue sea.

Fishermen clatter up the steep stone stairways of the village on wooden clogs, bearing wicker baskets of fish.

Ask Maresca to pack you a delicious lunch and descend by 395 stone steps to the beach. Rent a boat there and row up the coast.

The sea sucks noisily at black cliffs. A thousand feet above clings and twists the Amalfi Drive which skirts Positano. Row on and eventually you'll find an isolated beach where you land and swim and eat lunch and read.

On another day climb far up the mountains, past the luxuriant terraced gardens which yield three and four crops a year. Looking far down on Positano, you see a village that has survived the vicissitudes of time. A leisurely place, yes, but a perfect place to work too, as numerous writers and painters of many nations have discovered.

AP&L Service Costs Under PSC Study

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A study of Arkansas Power and Light Co. service costs was formally ordered yesterday by the Arkansas Public Service Commission.

A PSC resolution directed certain employees to begin the study now and said that James M. Honaker of Frankfort, Ky., the rate consultant hired for the job, is ready to begin work.

The study will determine the fairness of the utility's late structure.

Objections to Some Issues in Highway Bill

By JAMES MARLOW Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — "You did it when we weren't looking."

That is the complaint some senators made against the rest of the Senate for inserting in the new superhighway program — a few sentences which, if they stand, may cause confusion for years.

It is true some weren't looking. Some weren't listening either. And some weren't there.

The Senate debated Monday, and 14 hours Tuesday, before approving a bill to create over the next 13 years a 40,000-mile network of superhighways costing the federal government about 25 billion dollars and the states about 2½ billion.

Since the federal government will pay most of the bill, Sen. Chavez (D-NM) proposed the government should decide the wage rates for men who build the network. He said the secretary of labor should do the deciding.

This wasn't unusual. Under a law passed in 1931 the labor secretary decides wage rates for workers on projects paid for by the government. This applies to contracts for direct federal construction as well as to contracts for schools, hospitals, housing, airports and other facilities built with federal aid funds.

The secretary decides what the prevailing rate is in the area for the same kind of work — in this case it would be roadbuilding — and says that should be the wage rate for the highway builder.

There were a lot of objections, particularly from Southern Democrats, including Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark).

Their arguments, boiled down, ran like this: What area would the secretary select as a yardstick? An area close to where a strip of highway is to be built or some city 100 miles away where wages might be higher? What would happen to the economy of a rural area is the secretary fixed wage rates for roadbuilders out of line with wages paid nearby farmhands? Would they quit the farms to work on the roads?

Besides, so the arguments went, the labor secretary shouldn't have final say. The states — this was the states' rights argument — should have a voice in deciding rates.

Fulbright suggested it might be well to let anyone who disagreed with the labor secretary appeal to the courts. Opponents argued this might foul up the whole highway program, get it snarled in court fights over the United States for years.

The Senate finally approved Chavez's idea: the labor secretary should decide the rates. But it was a day of confusion on the floor. And just about dinner time, Fulbright got up again, proposing as an amendment to Chavez's proposal that anyone disagreeing with the secretary's wage rates could appeal to the courts.

The Senate quickly voted for this. Sometime later Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.), an opponent of Fulbright's amendment, realized what had happened. He asked the Senate to reconsider.

He hadn't heard the amendment read, he said, because there was too much disorder on the floor at the time.

He said he doubted many senators knew what they were voting for. Sen. Morse (D-Ore) said he didn't know about it because he was out to dinner. Sen. Gore (D-Tenn) said he didn't realize it either. His back was turned at the time, he said.

The Senate let the Fulbright amendment stand. But the Senate bill differs from a similar measure passed by the House which said the labor secretary should decide wage rates but didn't provide for any appeal to the courts.
